Forty Thousand in Gehenna is an absolutely fantastic work of science fiction. In every sense of the word. I am completely in awe with what Cherryh has done with this story. I won't go into detail, because I simply won't do it justice. Just read this book. However, I would say, if you've never read Cherryh before, start elsewhere.

Forty Thousand In Gehenna is an off-shoot of the Cyteen cycle. Azi are dropped off on Gehenna after being trained to become a stone in the throat of the Alliance forces. Certain aspects of the landing are predictable: the departure from the original plan by the younger generations, the bewilderment of the AZI parents who are ill-equipped to handle "born men".
